

Amendments to the Specifications:

Please replace paragraph [0010], previously page 2 lines 14 – 18 of the original filed application, with the following amended:

[0010] One aspect of the disclosure is a method of providing a proxy user interface. A proxy user interface is provided for a secondary application activated by a user input. The proxy interface displays current or default settings for a task of that application. If no ~~use~~ user input is received through the proxy interface, the task is performed. If a user input is received, the user interface for that application is presented to the user.
